WE NOMINATE

Gerald William Breese, director of Princeton University's Bureau of Urban Research, that is currently observing the tenth anniversary of its founding with a five-session Urban Planning Forum devoted to such vitally important subjects as "The Planning Process and Public Participation", "Land Use and Zoning" and "Housing and Urban Development." It is striking that in this series of Princeton Lectures the 39-year old Breese and his associates have demonstrated the closeness of the Town-and-Gown relationship by turning to the Town and asking three well qualified Princetonians, no one of whom has any direct connection with the University, to hold forth as lecturers.

Dedicated to adding to man's understanding of the diverse activities which form cities, the Bureau under Breese's direction has in the past 16 months attracted a growing amount of attention in New Jersey. Its studies of urbanization in this area's "boom-town districts," centered around the U. S. Steel plant across the Delaware in Morrisville, Pa., will prove invaluable to planning authorities, while State officials are still wrestling with points made in last spring's analysis of "Industrial Land Use in Burlington County," that emphasized that the potential market of the Burlington Region includes some 32 per cent of the nation's population.

Breese, a native of Breesport, N. Y., and a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, was called to Princeton in 1949 and near the close of the same academic year was named director of the Bureau, one of the University's eight major research units in the social sciences. Because of the complexity of urban planning, and the need for understanding the demands of creative research as well as the problems poised by the practical aspects of such essentials as landscaping and lighting, the position called for a remarkably well-rounded individual.

An Army veteran of World War II, who taught following V-E Day at Shrivenham American University (England), Breese prepared for his career as a social scientist by "majoring" in English and carrying forward advanced studies in philosophy and ethics. Between 1935 and his enlistment in the Armed Forces, he served as Dean of Men at Pacific University (Oregon) and later with the Chicago Plan Commission. His post-war experience embraced duty at the University of Chicago and two years on the Social Science Research Council as secretary of its Committee on Housing Research.

For giving Princetonians unusual opportunities to consider many of the issues they must face in the near future as Princeton residents; for strengthening the ties binding the State of New Jersey and the University that once bore its name; for directing original research in a relatively new sphere of endeavor; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for Football Capital. Throughout the length and breadth of the United States this weekend, no football game would be watched with more interest than the clash in Palmer Stadium between Cornell and Princeton. Best proof of such attention is the fact that it is the only contest between two of the teams ranked within the top 12 in the nation (Princeton is eighth and its guests are 12th), as well as being the only meeting between two colleges still unbeaten this season.

Add to that the fact that the outcome will go far to decide the Ivy League title and that Princeton is placing its string of 17 victories—longest in the U. S.—on the line, and the game becomes one unsurpassed for sheer drama. The final touch, possibly, is built around the fact that the last team to defeat Princeton, on October 22, 1949, was Cornell.

At least two thousand tickets remain unsold and will be available at the stadium starting at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. However, by game-time at 2, the huge concrete horseshoe may well see its first rock-bottom sell-out since the Yale-Princeton game exactly 15 years ago.

Whatever the size of the crowd, press box attendance will set a new record. Every major daily in the East's dozen largest cities, as well as others from Chicago and Minneapolis, will be represented; every major newsreel company will have its cameramen on hand; radio and television stations will cover the game in detail.

The action on the gridiron will be visible, however, only in such distant spots as theatres in New York State and New England, as well as on home sets in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Washington and eight other cities along the Atlantic seaboard south of the District of Columbia. If the S.R.O. sign goes out, it will be a major point in checking the effect of television on sports attendance. Last year, when both teams were also unbeaten, some 4,000 seats remained unfilled.

Call Goes to Bodo. The First Presbyterian Church has extended an invitation to the Rev. John R. Bodo of 21 Dickinson Street to become its pastor, succeeding the late Rev. Dr. Frank S. Niles. While the choice of the congregation and the committee representing the church on the matter of a new pastor has been unanimously made, the call is not official until it is issued by the Presbytery.

Mr. Bodo is not, accordingly, in a position to announce his decision until he has been officially notified of the church's action through the Presbyterian heirarchy. Formerly a teaching fellow at Princeton Theological Seminary, he is currently studying for the degree of doctor of theology there.

Sunday Liquor Sales Out. Princeton township voters will have no referendum this year on the question of Sunday liquor sales. The question was ruled invalid by the Mercer County attorney's office.

The decision was based on a law passed in 1949 that no question involving the sale of alcoholic beverages could be repeated on a general election ballot within a five-year period after it had been defeated. Township voters disapproved of Sunday sales at the polls in November, 1948.

At that time, the law approved re-asking the question three years after it had appeared. Since the legislation raising the length of time to five years was not enacted until 1949, it was believed that the referendum could be held again this fall, the date established by the law in force when it was last on the ballot.

A petition bearing the names of 256 voters was placed in the hands of the township committee early this month. The State Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission would not pass upon it, however, and its opinion was upheld by the county attorney. Accordingly, it will be November, 1953, before the matter of Sunday sales (from 1 p.m. to midnight) can be debated again in the township.

Service to the People. Two advertisements in particular made news in TOWN TOPICS this week. On the right, the Nassau Oil Company is presenting the first of a series of weekend weather forecasts: day-to-day changes, plus a prediction of the temperature fluctuation from Thursday through Sunday. They will appear as a regular weekly feature.

The information offered TOWN TOPICS' readers is based on long-range forecasts supplied by the United States Weather Bureau. The original idea for the service was conceived by Richard H. Morgan, president of Nassau Oil, while the drawings of the Small Man Who Knows All are the work of Ray Welhaus, a commercial artist whose home is on Ewing Street.

Service to its customers of another sort is announced this week by Bamman's, which feels that "parking in the business section and on Nassau Street in particular continues to be a problem." Many of those who shop in the store, its management feels, are harrassed by the fact that time on their meters is about to expire before they return to their cars.

Adopting a policy that might be described as "shopping without worry or hurry," Bamman's has announced that it will henceforth encourage its customers to buy all the time they can get on a meter by crediting them with a five-cent deduction on their purchases. These must total at least $1 and must, of course, be made in person, not by telephone. For the full massage, see the advertisement on page four.

Rallies Scheduled. Both parties have announced political rallies for the coming week. The Democrats will be in session Monday night at 8:15 at the Chestnut Street firehouse, with candidates to be heard briefly, refreshments to be served and the public invited.

Fred VanDeventer will be the speaker at the Republican rally Thursday night at 8:15 at the Chambers Street firehouse. His topic will be "The Need for National Guidance at the Local Level." Candidates named by the party for borough and township offices will also speak.

Telegram Tax Lowered. The tax bill that Congress passed to become effective next Thursday includes something of a surprise in the face of the many increases it will bring. The excise tax on telegrams is reduced from 25 to 15 percent; other communications tax rates in the nation are unchanged.

William N. Boehm, manager of Western Union's Princeton office at 92 Nassau Street, points out that

(IMPROVING ON NATURE)

She Sells Sea Shells. May Forman, a smart girl who in partnership with her husband saw all sorts of possibilities in sea shells on her last trip to Florida, now imports them from that well-publicized oasis as the basis of a brand new business: jewelry-making. We spotted this as a trend a couple of years back in New York but at the most fabulous prices, so are particularly delighted to see the same sort of beach-combing going on right here in Princeton at a much lower rate of exchange.

At the moment, Mrs. Forman is specializing in shell earrings and pins . . . some of them left practically in their natural state to clip on singly or in multiple on a sweater or dress . . . others crushed into driftwood or tropical floral designs . . . and still others painted with a pretty pearlescence (pale watery colors or black pearl tones) and then studded with rhinestone glitter to create the chunky extravagance that costume jewelry seems to be assuming this season.

Everything here is done by special order—nice latitude if you have any special ideas about Christmas gifts or personal preferences about what you can or can't wear. The earrings start at a tiny $1.50 . . . a complete set of the costume stuff for as little as $2.50. One week will turn almost any shell trick you might name if you call 1706 after 6 p. m.

The Essence of Taste. The thing that seems most quickly to throw us into fits and starts of consumer frustration is pretence or ornateness in things. Whether it's silver-coated "sterling" or "mink-dyed" lapin, there's something wrong to our way of thinking in taking a perfectly good material of humble origin and giving it airs. Like social climbing, it's a bore.

That's why we're particularly glad to see the Gense of Sweden line of stainless tableware coming to Princeton under the auspices of the Better Mousetrap, 164 Nassau. We've long admired the integrity of design and complete functionality of the Gense things in the plate glass sanctity of Bonniers, but this has been our first opportunity to examine them at anything near a close-up.

There are several styles to choose from, all with the nice understated quality of things from Sweden. Two styles—one strict in its austerity, the other ridged rather than fluted—look particularly well with the elliptical shapes of modern. The other style could have originally been designed by our own Revere—having the graceful tapered quality of early coin silver. Your choice of either a mirror or satin finish will cost you $8 a place-setting or $32 for a table setting for six.

Your House at Christmas. We Sherlock Holmesed this right out of the T.T. classified section last week, where we saw a diffident little ad for custom-order Christmas cards reproducing exactly a sketch or photograph of the place you hang your hat.

A fast check-up by telephone brought lots of information and a chuckle from the proprietress of all this good cheer—the wife of the Reverend Mr. Jones in Hellertown, Pa. She's a lady whose sense of humor seems to have survived a pair of little girls plus a congregation, leaving her time enough to start practically a nation-wide stationery business around either individually packaged informals of "Home Sweet Home" and picture

About That Parking Problem

Despite the presence of meters in Princeton for the post 14 months, porking in the business section and on Nassau Street in particular continues to be a problem.

We "at the head of the town" feel that we are perhaps more acutely aware of this situation than most. We have no simple solution to the problem—but do believe we can be helpful to this degree:

Effective IMMEDIATELY, on every purchase made personally at this store in the amount of $1.00 or more, we will allow a five-cent credit for porking. We look forward to having you take advantage of this offer.

the saving to the public is expected to exceed $14,000,000 annually. The 25 percent tax, a wartime measure, was originally passed to discourage civilian use of telegraph service and free the wires for handling of vital military messages. Since that time, Western Union has completed a hundred million dollar mechanization and improvement program that has doubled its message capacity. Congress accordingly saw fit to reduce this tax, partially offsetting other increased levies.

How to Handle a Fox. There is no age at which a boy is never lost in knowing what to do, no matter what the situation that arises. It must include the ages of 9 and 12, because when Blake Smith, who's 9, and Tom Burgess, who is 12, found their dogs had cornered a fox, they handled the matter with ease.

Blake, son of Dr. and Mrs. DeWitt Smith of Drake's Corner Road, told us that Windy, the family collie, had a fox at bay as they came around a bend on a woodland path. Two German shepherd pups were leading eager assistance.

"Tom picked the fox up by the tail and we started for home," Blake said. "Pretty soon I began to carry him, grabbing him by the tail and the scruff of the neck so's he couldn't bite.

"We put him in the corn crib and fed him dog food for a couple of days. We wanted to keep him for a pet, but he died."

It was too bad, the boys thought but still there was no problem about it. Tom (son of Mr. and Mrs. John Calloway of The Great Road) knew exactly how to skin the fox and save his pelt. It seems he's well along in a correspondence course in taxidermy.

Bookmobile Schedule. Princeton township residents, to whom a small fee is charged for using the borough's public library, may borrow without cost from the county's service. Books are made available by special car every other Friday (starting this week) at the following locations::

272 Alexander, Mrs. Clarence Foster, 9:35-9:50; Morgan Place, 9:55-10:10; Laurel Road, Mrs. Francis Darkee, Jr., 10:15-10:40; 115 Jefferson, Mrs. William Karch, 10:45-11; 302 Western Way, Mrs. Paul Smith, 11:05-12; Prospect Avenue Extension, Mrs. Joseph Stemmle, 12:40-12:55; Random Road, Mrs. Louis Powsak, 1-1:50; Harrison Street Project, near 220-A King, 2-3; 8 Ober Road, Mrs. Eugene Wigner, 3:05-3:55; Edgerstoune Road, Mrs. John McAndrew, 3:40-3:55.

Those who live near Mrs. Elwood Lawrence on the Princeton-Lawrenceville Road, or Mrs. Gordon Griffin on Snowden Lane, may borrow from the books left in their homes. An appointment for so doing is suggested. Township residents who feel none of these locations is convenient should write or telephone the Mercer County Library, County Court House, Trenton, which will help them solve the problem.

THE PLAYPHOUSE

Texas Carnival (Thurs.-Sat.), a gay picture for a big football weekend, is as big, colorful and sprawling as the state it's named for. It's an Esther Williams picture with Red Skelton heading the list of those providing the comedy. Good natured and eager to please, the film offers enough variety during the course of its mistaken identity theme to rank among the better pictures of its kind.

Thunder on the Hill (Sun.-Tues.), its setting largely in an English convent, mixes religion and murder. Claudette Colbert is cast as a strong-willed nun who goes against the orders of her superiors in her efforts to solve a crime and free another woman (Ann Blyth) accured as a killer. Well acted, well told but occasionally quite slow.

A Streetcar Named Desire (Wed.-Sat.) is a straight forward film version of the Tennessee Williams play which won the Pulitzer Prize in 1947. The story follows the tragic fate of a once-glamorous Southern belle whose heritage has ebbed away, whose husband has committed suicide and who eventually experiences complete degradation. Powerful in its emotions, impressively written and given the benefit of topflight acting by Vivien Leigh, Marlon Brando and Kim Hunter. Advanced prices; second show at 9:20 p. m.

THE GARDEN

The Tall Target (Fri.-Sat.) is the record of a little-known attempt to assassinate Abraham Lincoln as he was en route to Washington to assume the Presidency in 1861. Dick Powell is cast as the detective who learns of the plot; his efforts to foil it are of average suspense and excitement.

The Frogmen (Mon.-Tues.), here earlier this year, is an unusual picture of the Navy's demolition teams who worked under water in strange-looking diving suits during the last war. Action and a good share of unique photography make the film well worthwhile. Richard Widmark and Dana Andrews top the cast.

Odette (Wed.-Thurs.), a British production based on fact, tells of the efforts of French agents to best the Nazis in occupied France during 1943. Uneven in its pace but frequently dramatic, as espionage, capture, torture and sentences to a concentration camp befall the central character (Anna Neagle) and her husband.

Cavalry Scout (Fri.-Sat.) involves adventure on the Montana frontier of 1876, when Indians were preparing to battle General Custer and the Gatling gun was being used by the U. S. army for the first time. A colorful, generally well-made western with Rod Cameron and Audrey Long.

THE EUROPA

Tales of Hoffman will continue through Sunday at the Europa Theatre in New Brunswick. Unusually picturesque, filled with good ballet and fine singing, the picture ranks at the top of its kind of entertainment.

Miscellany. The Princeton Triangle Club's 60th anniversary production, "Never Say Horses," will have its first performance December 6 in McCarter Theatre, with two others to follow before the company embarks on a 14-city itinerary as far west as St. Louis. The setting is among the society of New York's Battery neighborhood hut ranges, too, from night clubs to medieval castles.

A mobile blood unit will visit Princeton on November 21, with the Red Cross committee sponsoring the collection of 656 pints from this community pledging itself to fill every appointment that day. Arrangements were completed Monday night at the Nassau Tavern to aid the drive seeking to end an acute shortage threatening the lives of American soldiers in Korea.

David H. Borrooghs of 48 Nassau Street, a salesman for the Turney Motor Co., is recovering from a heart attack suffered Sunday. He was in a boat on the Delaware River near the Tacony-Palmyra Bridge when the attack occurred and was taken to a Philadelphia hospital.

A 53-mile section of the New Jersey Turnpike from Bordentown south to Deepwater is scheduled to open toward the end of next week. An official preview is scheduled for Wednesday.

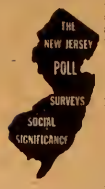
The New Jersey Poll

MAIN CAUSES OF APATHY ON VOTERS' PART LISTED AS ELECTION DAY NEARS



On November 6, New Jersey voters will go to the polls. The only thing certain about the election is that at least one out of every two adults in the state won't vote.

Unquestionably, getting more people to the polls is one of the major problems facing the nation today. To determine the views of the New Jersey public on this all-important matter, New Jersey Poll reporters asked them what they thought was the chief reason why so many people don't vote.

A tabulation of the answers given shows that four reasons stand out in New Jersey people's minds: that people just don't care enough about it; that voters have little interest in politics or politicians; that they are disgusted with both politics and politicians; and that people are just plain lazy.

Nearly three out of every five of all those questioned in today's survey named one of the above four. The only other reasons receiving sizeable mention are that people feel that their vote won't count much; and that they don't know the candidates or the issues well enough. The question:

"In last November's Congressional Elections, about one out of every two adults in the state didn't vote. What do you think is the chief reason why so many people don't vote?"

These were the results: —

People just don't care; indifference about the whole thing	19%
Lack of interest; no interest in politics; lack of civic interest	16
People disgusted with politics and politicians	12
Laziness; too lazy to register; too lazy to come out and vote	11
Feel their vote won't make much difference; don't think their vote counts for much	7
People don't know about candidates or issues involved	6

SPORTS IN SHORT

No. 17. During the third period of the Lafayette football game last Saturday, a Princeton quarterback called a pass play that covered 26 yards and scored a touchdown. On the sidelines, his coach didn't like it and told him so a little later on.

This paradoxical situation was directly traceable to the 40 points that the Tigers had run up in the first half over a hopeful but poorly-drilled Lafayette team. A coach whose team is running all over the opposition has only one or two ways of keeping the score down. He can use all his substitutes and he can order straight football with no passes.

Charlie Caldwell had emptied his bench before the second quarter was half gone. During the intermission, he told his first-string players they were through for the day and asked the reserve combinations not to throw the ball. That was why the fair-minded Princetonian was somewhat perturbed when an eager sophomore called for an aerial that promptly brought the Tigers' seventh touchdown.

Actually, while the second half wasn't particularly inspiring to the 15,000 spectators, it didn't bury the visiting team under another avalanche of touchdowns and they racked up one themselves three minutes before the game's end. The final count of 60 to 7 went into the books as the Tigers' 17th straight victory and served to move them forward to eighth place in the Associated Press national rankings.

The Leopards' poor performance (they are now 1-4 for the season and the only team they have beaten is 0-5) did not keep the Orange and Black from playing some topflight football against them. Five plays brought the first Princeton score in 2:15, Dick Kazmaier's runs of 27 and 18 yards, plus a 14-yard pass to John Emery eating up most of the distance. Kaz took the ball across, Russ McNeil booted the first of six placements and will have that assignment again Saturday.

Dick Pivirotto tossed to Emery from the wingback position for the second score in 12:39 and four more touchdowns were shoved over in the second period. Bill Tryon, who had a great afternoon as Kazmaier's substitute before leaving the game with a charleyhorse, passed 38 yards to Frank Lovecchio for one and then raced 64 yards through a huge hole at right tackle, for another. In all, Tryon picked up 225 yards and had a direct hand in four of the Tigers' touchdowns in four games, the top scorer in the Ivy Group. Other Cornell halfbacks, all able, all fast, are Bob Engel, Lyndon Hull, Bill Scazzero, Bill Whelan and Bill Kirk. Hal Siedenberg, 195-pound fullback, is the Red's top man at this position and ranks with Bob Spears of Yale and Joe Varaitis of Penn as the East's best.

Rocco Calvo had a poor day at Princeton last season as a sophomore, but Cornell's T quarterback has gained steadily in experience and on a basis of his first four games is the statistical equal of Dick Kazmaier as a passer. Jack Jaekel is his understudy and a good one.

East and have running ahead of their ball carriers a topflight line that averages better than 197 pounds per man. Defensively, they are also well above average ability, although in this respect the Tigers have the edge on them.

Possibly the best of the Ithacans' backs is Stu Merz, a 200-pound halfback who can run 100 yards in ten seconds and is, with seven touchdowns in four games, the top scorer in the Ivy Group. Other Cornell halfbacks, all able, all fast, are Bob Engel, Lyndon Hull, Bill Scazzero, Bill Whelan and Bill Kirk. Hal Siedenberg, 195-pound fullback, is the Red's top man at this position and ranks with Bob Spears of Yale and Joe Varaitis of Penn as the East's best.

Rocco Calvo had a poor day at Princeton last season as a sophomore, but Cornell's T quarterback has gained steadily in experience and on a basis of his first four games is the statistical equal of Dick Kazmaier as a passer. Jack Jaekel is his understudy and a good one.

For example, Cornell has quite an edge in the number of running backs it can toss into the fray and, in front of them, a line that is heavier and more experienced from tackle to tackle. Defensively, the Red also has an edge in depth, but the Tigers' first-string defensive platoon is figured to be better than any 11 players the Ithacans can deploy.

In the air, the Orange and Black is superior. Rocco Calvo ranks with Quarterback George Stevens (26) has averaged 4.3 yards per carry this season, while tailback Dick Kazmaier (42) has been credited with 5.6 yards every time he has handled the ball. Fullback Russ McNeil (39) has gone through the middle at a rate of 3.8 yards per clip, while wingback Dick Pivirotto has made 4.6 yards per carry. The Tigers have averaged 37.8 points a game in winning their first four this season.

Statistically, Princeton rolled to 24 first downs and 595 yards gained, to two first downs and 94 yards for the losers. The performance served to send the Orange and Black to the top of the Ivy Group in yards gained rushing and as the team with the best defense.

Game of the Year. Nowhere in the East this season will a game attract more attention than the clash this Saturday at 2 between Cornell and Princeton. It will go far to settle the Ivy League championship, it is the only contest of the weekend across the nation between two undefeated teams, and a victory for the Tigers will give them a better than even chance of going through their second sucessive season without a defeat.

Cornell is coming to Palmer Stadium with a fine team, considered to be markedly better than that which rolled to a 7-2 record last year and whipped Penn in the final game of its season. The Ithacans are deeper by far in the backfield than any other squad in the Anchoring the Cornell line at the tackle slots are 210-pound Al Pyott and 225-pound Charlie Metzler. Captain Vic Pujo and Dick Cliggott are the ranking offensive ends; the only major loss in the line was John Pierik, a fine center. The New Yorkers have won four in a row (Syracuse, Colgate, Harvard and Yale) and are as eager for revenge for their 27-0 pasting here a year ago as any team could possibly be against a traditional rival.

Where Cornell is two and three deep at virtually every position, Princeton can rarely count on replacements the equal of first line material. More than anything else, that is the difference between the two teams.

The only other major factor that could weaken one of the entries, harring last minute injuries to a key player, is rain. Princeton must be able to pass to win, to have the threat of its strong air arm everpresent so that its running game can feature deception. If the weather should force the Tigers to stay on the ground, it is difficult to see how they can prevail.

The Nassau offensive lineup is intact, with Dick Pivirotto so valuable as wingback that he will run on that platoon and Ned Jannotta, Bob Richards or Dick Yaffa will fill the positions left open by Pivirotto and the injured Jack Newell. Emery or Tryon will handle the kickoffs that Newell took care of before breaking his ankle.

The game figures to be a tremendous aerial battle, since Princeton will use Kazmaier's All-American arm and Cornell does not figure to run steadily against the fine Nassau defensive line. The Red gained 318 yards in the air against Yale last week as Calvo and Jaeckel completed 12 of their 22 passes. The Elis, incidentally, had one of the best pass defense records in the East before Cornell invaded the Bowl.

For a great many reasons—the biggest being the fact that both teams must depend on successful passing for a victory—the outcome of the game is unusually difficult to predict. While the teams appear evenly matched on a basis of overall Attention, Ladies in Waiting. A new kind of self-improvement course to the girl who's going to have a baby. There are no creams or lotions to try—no back-breaking diet; just the basic essentials of common-sense living, plus detailed answers to all the questions that novice mothers-to-be sometimes are too inhibited or too unprepared to ask their doctors.

All wrapped neatly in a series of 12 lectures by Mrs. Margaret Obert, R.N. at her home on Jefferson Road, based on the already famous natural childbirth program which has been carried on so successfully at Maternity Center, New York, the course is meant as a physical and psychological preparation for the actual process of childbirth. Contrary to what many people think, natural childbirth does not discourage the use of drugs or anesthetic, nor does it claim to be a painless method. Rather it stresses the importance of understanding and participation of both husband and wife in what should be one of the happiest experiences of their lives.

Anyone interested in the course should contact Mrs. Obert (223-W). Written permission of your physician is requested.

the best of the T quarterbacks in the East, but he isn't a Kazmaier in passing and he doesn't run the ball. Calvo's other counterpart on the Princeton team, quarterback George Stevens, is every bit as good a field general despite less varsity experience.

The intangible factors are, of course, all against a Princeton victory. The 17-game winning streak is beginning to get top heavy. It wasn't in the books for a team that had lost five starting defensive players, including an All-American tackle, and ten starting offensive players, an All-American center among them, to win its first four in a row this year. That goes especially for the Penn game.

This is not, however, any time to go picking against a Nassau entry that has done as much as this team has. The Tigers have a major asset in the single wing over the T. They have played against it until they know it by heart, whereas Cornell is about to get its rare glimpse of the deceptive power-laden backlateral sequence. Added to that, win, lose or draw, the feeling here is that the Nassau squad has a head coach and coaching staff second to none in the nation.

Regardless of depth, Kazmaier's all-around ability will go far to keep Princeton even in offensive power. On defense, the edge goes to the home forces so long as the first platoon stays in there, and it showed tremendous lasting power against Penn. Given a dry field and no more than a 50-50 share of the breaks, the Orange and Black figures to win.

P.H.S. Wins County Title. With the Mercer County championship safely registered in the record book, Princeton High School's undefeated football team will launch the second half of its eight-game schedule against Somerville away this Friday night at 8.

The Little Tigers clinched the crown and achieved the first sweep over their three county rivals since 1948 with a convincing 31-12 victory over Trenton Catholic last Friday on the high school field. Going over the 30-point mark for the third consecutive week, P.H.S. ended up with 95 points in county competition against 25 for the opposition.

Although more than two-thirds of its offensive total of 397 yards was gained in the air, Princeton also effectively utilized its running game. Its varied attack was in sharp contrast to the Trenton Catholic eleven, which moved for 371 yards on the ground, but failed to pick up a single yard via the aerial route.

The only two passes thrown by the losers were intercepted and turned into touchdowns by the Little Tigers. The winners capitalized on a recovered fumble for a third touchdown, and tallied two more on sustained marches of 78 and 81 yards. Freddy Wilson and Bud Bosley, the scoring twins in the P.H.S. backfield, continued to lead a high-powered offense.

Wilson tossed a TD aerial to end Buster Thomas, who sparkled throughout the game in the pass-catching department, for the Little Tigers' first score early in the game. He scored the fourth and fifth touchdowns himself on plunges from inside the five-yard line.

Bosley, sharing the passing assignments with Wilson, swept right end for 17 yards and Princeton's third TD on the first play of the second period. Cal Ruedemann recorded the remaining score, returning an intercepted pass 49 yards in the first stanza. Andy Doral, the standout for the losers, and Dick McCullough scored for Trenton Catholic.

P.H.S. now boasts four consecutive victories this season, and has not been defeated in 11 starts over a two-year period. A 7-7 tie with Trenton Catholic last fall prevented an all-winning season.

Hun Meets Solebury. The Hun School football team will return to action on Friday afternoon at 3 against Solebury School from Bucks County, Pa., at Edgerstoune. Coach Jess Willard's eleven will be looking for its first victory after dropping two games.

Eagles at Home Again. Seeking to move above the .500 mark once more, the Princeton Eagles football team will meet the Bordentown Steelers Sunday at 2:15 on the high school field. Attendance at home contests is increasing steadily, and the Eagles have never failed to give a good account of themselves.

The unbeaten White Horse Ramblers took their measure this week in a close contest, winning 13-7. The visitors registered in the first period on a 65-yard pass play and then added another touchdown on an end run in the third quarter.

The Eagles, now 2-2 for the season, struck back in the final round when Bill Hoagland drove through the center of the line for 35 yards. Hoagland, incidentally, is a private in the Army stationed at Fort Dix, and gets permission to return home for the games each weekend.

NEWS OF THE THEATRES

The cast is headed by Robert Rounseville and Moira Shearer. Sir Robert Beecham conducts the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra as one of the film's many features. Performances at 7 and 9:20.

UNIVERSITY CHAPEL

Carl Weinrich, noted Princeton organist, will give the first of a series of recitals Sunday afternoon at 3:30 in the University Chapel. His program of contemporary organ music will include a Fantasy on a Hebrew Theme by Edward T. Cone; a Sonata by Krenek; the Mass for the Poor by Satie; and the Variations on an Original Theme by Schoenberg.

Mr. Cone's fantasy will have its first performance in Princeton. Also to be heard will be Milhaud's "Psalm 121," to be sung by a group from the Chapel Choir.

Here's the Answer
To Those Ringing Doorbells
On Hallowe'en!

Next Wednesday brings that autumn evening the children love. When they come calling on Hallowe'en, have some crunchy peanut brittle made by Miss Martin waiting for them.

Wafer thin, tangy and chock full of nuts, it's the kind everyone wants. Buy some for the family, too—you'll find the top won't go back on the box until every last piece is eaten. And only 59 cents a pound!
